Welcome & Informed Consent

Welcome to the WCRP survey!

Dear Participant:

We hope you'll take the time to respond to this survey, which collects writing center data from the 2021-22 Academic Year. To give you an idea of the purpose and intents of this research as well as obtain your informed consent, please read the following. If you agree, click "continue" below or click "leave survey now." Your participation is completely voluntary and done without compensation or inducement. At any time, if you wish to withdraw, you are free to do so, and any information gathered up to that point will not be used in our research.

With this annual survey, IWCA continues the Writing Centers Research Project's longitudinal research on the usage, demographics, staffing, institutional support, personnel structures and processes of writing centers across the US and world and in a variety of educational contexts. Ideally, this survey will provide peer and aspirant institutions, writing center professionals, consultants, peer tutors, or coaches comparable information against which to assess or measure themselves. This survey will also continue to document the growth and changes of writing centers.

We invite you to participate in this survey, thereby contributing to the body of data available on how writing centers are operated, supported, and utilized. Gathering data and completing the survey may take up two hours. The survey is broken into the following main sections:

- Institutional information & Demographics
- Writing Center Operations
- Tutor/Consultation Information
- Student Usage & Efficacy
- Online Writing Lab/Virtual Writing Center Information
- Administrator Information

After clicking to continue the survey, you can preview the questions you will be asked and the sorts of data and information you might offer. You retain the right to refuse answers to any questions at any time; you may skip answers you choose not to respond to. You may stop and return at a later time, though you need to use the same machine from which you began.

The compiled data of this research will be available for review on the IWCA website and results will be presented at regional and national writing center conferences and in publications. For material presented publicly or submitted for publication, no individuals or individually identifiable information will be shared; only aggregated information or cross-tabulated information by region or institutional category or variable will ever be shared.

If you have any questions about what is stated above or on any other aspect of this research, please call us at (765) 496-2814 or hdenny@purdue.edu. Our Institutional Research Board (IRB) may be contacted at (765) 494-5942, or at the Human Research Protection Program, YONG 10th Floor, Rm 1032, 155 Grant Street, West Lafayette, IN 47906-2114.

Thanks again for your valuable help. The information you provide will benefit the writing center community considerably.

Sincerely,

Dr. Harry Denny

Director, Writing Lab

Professor, English

Student Usage & Efficacy

Over the last decade, more and more writing centers are collecting data on the "impact" of their units on quantifiable metrics, like retention, persistence, and graduation rates. Others look at how many students they see, what programs or courses students come from, and whether students come back. This section works to pool that information.

Conferences for the last academic year (including multiple visits by the same student/client/writer): (complete whatever is available or makes sense in your local context)

Fall	<input type="text"/>
Spring	<input type="text"/>
Overall academic year	<input type="text"/>

Students/clients/writers visiting the writing center for face-to-face conferences in the last academic year: (unduplicated headcount, or how many unique students came into the unit)
